SUMMER TEACHING JOBS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS AN EXCITING OPPORTUNITY TO PROVIDE NYC YOUTH RICH SUMMER LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Do you have a commitment to education and service in underserved communities? Join a select group of college students and work in New York City summer programs this summer. You will be placed as a trained educator in city summer camps to provide curricula support, academic enrichment activities, and tutoring services to youth in kindergarten through eighth grade.

As a Summer Teaching Fellow, you will receive training in experiential education curriculum and have opportunities to meet and train with leading city community educators. Summer Teaching Fellows are part of a citywide initiative to strengthen the educational opportunities and learning experiences for low-income youth.

The Partnership for After School Education (PASE) is a child-focused organization that promotes and supports quality afterschool programs, particularly those serving young people from underserved communities. PASE is committed to providing the 1,600 organizations in our network the support they need to provide the 500,000 young people in New York City's afterschool programs the academic assistance, social-emotional enrichment, and additional support they deserve.
